ing the imposing array of directors names in neat engraving at the head of it:—

Mr. John Smith—Dear Sir: In answer to yours of even date, I am instructed by the board of directors to say that they cannot agree with your view of the case. It is true that your work has largely increased, with the growth of the bank under its successful management. But it is no more than you are able to do and no more than we can find others to do for the salary we now pay you. The other phase of the matter you present—that we should pay you for the moral wear and tear incident to resisting temptation to steal, as well as for the physical and mental work you do—has no weight. Our relations, however pleasant personally, are purely a business affair on both sides. We pay you so much money for so much work. Your honesty is presumed. If you should prove dishonest we would discharge you and the law would send you to prison.

With your family affairs we have nothing to do, but I may suggest to you that careful economy in small household expenditures will result in an annual saving which will perhaps surprise you. Without referring especially to you—for I never endeavored to pry into your private affairs, nor inquired how you lived.—I may say that, in my opinion, the prevailing tendency of young people nowadays is to live too high, instead of being careful to lay up something for a rainy day.

The directors hadn't been in seasion long the next day when John Smith opened the door, handed in a slip of paper, and walked back to his desk. There was silence for a minute, then a murmur, then the clerks outside heard a clatter of moving chairs in the boardroom, and then the door opened and two or three volces called "Smith!"

"In a moment!" answered Smith, cheerfally, laying a blotter between the leaves of the book he had been writing in, and carefully tucking the pen behind his car, as though he were making his tollet.

"What do you mean by this?" they demanded, when he appeared in the

"What do you mean by this?" they demanded, when he appeared in the directors room. "Telling us there is only $0.647.80 of available cash, and suggesting that we get some for the counter."

"It's so," responded Smith, "and I thought you ought to know it before the money is all checked out. The bank oughtn't to have to close its doors in the middle of the day."

"But according to your statement of yesterday and your showing of to-day's business there ought to be $259.648. Where is the quarter of a million? We were just discussing an investment for it."

"I've invested it myself," responded Smith, cooly, "in a safe place—$250,000 of it. The other 20 cents I took for street car money. I took a quarter of a million away with me last evening."

"You what?"
"I stole it, in plain English. When I got this responses to my note to the president I—but really I must renew my suggestion about the Advisability of getting some cash on the counter. You are ery short, and you ought to attend to it

Two of the directors drew their checks Two of the directors drew their checks on other banks and sent them out, although the signatures were very shaky; and then, quite at his ease, Mr. Smith leaned up against the carved mantel-piece, read the president's note refusing his request for an increase, and went

"When I got this note, it set me to thinking whether, as our relations were a purely business affair, I couldn't do better than go on as I had been doing. There was $250,000 in convenient shape that I could get my hands on, I might have skipped to Canada with it, but I don't like the climate. I took the money away with me and concealed it—'pausing a moment and smiling down into their eager faces, "in a place known only to myself. I shall give myself up, and as our relations, in the language of the President, have been 'personally pleasant,' I will save you the expense of a trial by pleading guilty. The miximum sentence for my offense, under the laws of this State, is ten years in the pentientiary. With the commutation off for good behavior, that will be about eight and a half years. It will be dull, but I shall not be idle. I have never had leisure to cultivate the graces of the mind. I have a taste for music. I will cultivate it. "You can get the resolutions in shape by to-morrow," he said, 'and have the resolution's to bring it to-day, Mr. Smith?" asked the president in a perspiration.

"You haven't time to go after it. The work at my desk always keeps me hank. He walked back to his desk. Pretty soon they called him in gain, and the President made a little speech. He said the lesson had been an unpleasant one, but they were disposed to take it in the spirit in which it was given. Perhaps he was right. They had no desire to punish him, but—and here he hesitated and stammered a little—they were also unwilling, that is to say, they had no desire to keep a financier of his capacity in the humble place in which he had litherto been employed. Therefore, one of their number, Mr. Wilkins, who was the agent of an insurance company, at a salary of $4,000 ayear, had decided to resign that position, and would have resign that position, and would have Mr. Smith appointed his successor. Meanwhile, Mr. Smith could take a vacation of two weeks.

"Why, it's all here—you've brought it all back—"

"I never meant to steal it," said Smith, coolly, "I made you believe I did merely to convince you that you were conducting your bank on the wrong principle, in keeping a man on a starvation salary with a fortune within his grasp. I wanted to make you understand that there is something more in the relations between a bank and its trusted employes than cold business. The preparations used by barbers are not more vile than much I of the soap used for washing the head and hair. Rank with powerful chemicals or with an excess of alkali, they draw the natural oil from the hair, causing decay and baldness. The Ivory Soap, as Prof. Cornwall, of Princeton, says, "Is very well made The alkali is so thoroughly combined, it can not injure any thing." Insist upon your barber using only Ivory Soap and water when he gives you a shampoo.
